In the event all proposals exceed available funds and/or all proposals received do not meet all material respects of the request for proposals (RFP), the official with expenditure authority may authorize the procurement officer to negotiate an adjustment of the proposed price including changes in RFP requirements as may be required.

- b) Cost Analysis

NMHC CDBG-DR grant award contracts and expenditure are subject to federal uniform cost principles, in particular, 2 CFR 200.324 Contract Cost and Price.

§ 200.324 Contract cost and price.

(a) The non-Federal entity must perform a cost or price analysis in connection with every procurement action in excess of the Simplified Acquisition Threshold including contract modifications. The method and degree of analysis is dependent on the facts surrounding the particular procurement situation, but as a starting point, the non-Federal entity must make independent estimates before receiving bids or proposals.

(b) The non-Federal entity must negotiate profit as a separate element of the price for each contract in which there is no price competition and in all cases where cost analysis is performed. To establish a fair and reasonable profit, consideration must be given to the complexity of the work to be performed, the risk borne by the contractor, the contractor's investment, the amount of subcontracting, the quality of its record of past performance, and industry profit rates in the surrounding geographical area for similar work.

(c) Costs or prices based on estimated costs for contracts under the Federal award are allowable only to the extent that costs incurred or cost estimates included in negotiated prices would be allowable for the non-Federal entity under subpart E of this part. The non-Federal entity may reference its own cost principles that comply with the Federal cost principles.

(d) The cost plus a percentage of cost and percentage of construction cost methods of contracting must not be used.

Cost analysis is the review and evaluation of any separate cost elements and profit or fee in an offeror's or contractor's proposal, as needed to determine a fair and reasonable price or to determine cost realism, and the application of judgment to determine how well the proposed costs represent what the cost of the contract should be, assuming reasonable economy and efficiency.

The major categories of costs include both direct costs (direct labor, equipment, supplies, travel and per diem, subcontractors and other direct costs) and indirect costs (overhead, general and administrative expenses and profit). In the process of analyzing costs, profit should be analyzed separately, based on complexity of the work, risk to the contractor, investment required, amount of subcontracting involved, and typical profit in the industry.

NMHC may use various cost analysis techniques and procedures to ensure a fair and reasonable price, given the circumstances of the acquisition. Such techniques and procedures include, but not necessarily limited, to the following:

Verification of cost data or pricing data and evaluation of cost elements, including –

- 1) The necessity for, and reasonableness of, proposed costs, including allowances for contingencies;
- 2) General agreement on scope of work elements and performance schedule during a scoping meeting with the selected firm. The detailed scope of work and fee proposal shall at least contain the following:
 - the professional classification of personnel working on the job,
 - the hourly rate charged for each professional classification
 - estimated number of hours worked by each professional classification
 - Detailed scope of work items along with the estimated hours for each professional classification and their associated costs, and
 - the total estimated cost
- 3) Projection of the offeror's cost trends, on the basis of current and historical cost or pricing data;
- 4) Reasonableness of estimates generated by cost-estimating relationships; and
- 5) The application of audited or negotiated indirect cost rates, labor rates, and cost of money or other factors.
- 6) Negotiating profit as a separate element of cost

The selected firm shall complete the Cost Detail Sheet and submit along with their detailed scope of work and fee proposal. The above scope of work and fee must be submitted in a format that contain sufficient detail to allow for a reliable analysis to be performed to determine whether the costs are reasonable. Note that this would be the format a firm normally utilizes for presenting and negotiating a scope of work and fee proposal for A&E design and CA services and is in addition to completing the Cost Detail Sheet.
